City's trustee policy questioned after arrest

BY D.C. HARVILL
A Bay St. Louis woman is questioning the city's use of jail trustees as laborers after one allegedly took valuables from her home while unsupervised. Peter Bell, a jail trustee who had been working in a city street crew, was arrested in late October and charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of wedding and engagement rings from the home of Mrs. Richard Abbrecht. According to Abbrecht, she thought the trustees who had been working on her street for several days were regular city workers, so when Bell came to her door asking to use the phone, she let him in. After Bell left the house, she discovered the rings were missing, Abbrecht said. "I feel like we should have been informed that the men were prisoners," said Abbrecht, who said she tried to file suit against Bay Mayor Edward "Eddie" Favre for negligence as a result of the alleged theft. While an attorney wrote letters to the mayor on her behalf, he would not take the case, she said. "I got absolutely no satisfaction out of Mayor Favre. I just think the people need to know what is going on," Abbrecht said.

"The men had been supervised, but the supervisors were called away because of an emergency at the municipal pier," Favre said. According to the Mayor, trustees are used because it is the only way the city can improve services while staying within their restrictive budget. Only non-violent prisoners are used by the city, he said.

"Regardless of the outcome of the case, a poor decision was made in leaving the trustees unattended; it is very unfortunate. I just hope it doesn't jeopardize a program that is so valuable to the city," Favre said.

As a result of the case, he city has tightened its policy governing the use of trustees, he said. Bell's case will be presented to Hancock County's January 1990 Grand Jury.

Landfill permit issuance pending wetlands plan

BY D.C. HARVILL
A permit for Hancock County's proposed new landfill has been approved by the Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control, but will not be issued until the county complies with recommendations from several government agencies regarding wetlands at the landfill site. The Hancock County Board of Supervisors was informed by engineer Lloyd Compton that the landfill will have to be constructed in accordance with wetland regulations that are currently being established, but have not been set forth as law. The new regulations are being developed in response to a mandate by President George Bush that no more wetlands will be lost.

According to Compton, the Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Soil Conservation Service and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency are all involved in an interagency squabble to see who will administer the new regulations. Until the issue of administration has been resolved, any construction involving wetlands is subject to review by each of the agencies.

The recommendations by the agencies for development of the Standard landfill call for "mitigation" of the wetlands lost to the construction. Mitigation means the wetlands destroyed for the landfill will have to be replaced with manmade wetlands elsewhere. The recommendations call for a one and one-half to one replacement ratio, meaning 15 acres of wetlands will have to be created to replace the 10 acres at the landfill site.

Creation of the wetlands requires that the land be cleared of trees and scrapped clean of soil to a level that will hold water. Soil from the destroyed wetlands will then be relocated to the new site.

The recommendations stipulate that certain species of trees will have to be planted on the "new" wetlands and must have a 75 percent survival rate. Compliance with the recom-

Below freezing weather strikes Hancock County

BY DENA BISNETTE

Sub-freezing temperatures along the Gulf Coast caused some problems in the Bay St. Louis area Friday night and Saturday, resulting in one case of hypothermia, numerous water pipe problems and high electricity usage.

One victim of hypothermia was brought to Hancock Medical Center Friday night. According to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, the man was identified as David Skinner and was picked up in the Louisiana marshes.

Skinner was reportedly out in a boat and had been in the marshes for several days. He was airlifted by helicopter to the old Hancock General Hospital site, then taken Hancock Medical Center by a state trooper, the sheriff said.

Angela Gambino, a supervisor at the hospital, said Skinner was in the intensive care unit Saturday but was in stable condition.

She said emergency room personnel determined his body temperature to be about 89 degrees when he was brought into Hancock Medical Center.

Gambino was also in charge of a program in which the medical center served as a shelter for people who had no heat during the night.

However, she said no one responded to the invitation to stay at the hospital.

"Basically we use our lobby and part of the emergency room and provide blankets and so forth. For hurricanes, we usually get a whole lot of people in here," she said.

"There was a lot of warning before this freeze. We had about three days, and we believe most of the people who needed assistance had gotten it by last night."

Gambino said the hospital will keep the invitation open as needed, with the need expected to continue at least through the weekend.

Utility crews were working Saturday in Bay St. Louis and Waveland to cope with water problems resulting from frozen pipes.

Norbert Redmond, director of public works in Bay St. Louis, said his crews were busy that morning, working 35 calls before 1 p.m. Most of the calls were request for water to be turned off while residents fixed ruptured pipes or to have the water turned on again after they show up in a day or two when it thaws," Redmond said.

Charlie Bourgeois, head of the Waveland Water and Gas Department's crew, could not be reached for comment Saturday, but a member of his family stated that he was out working on service calls.

County Maintenance Superintendent Sam Cuevas had placed his crews on standby

Bay gas supply cut-off thwarted

BY DENA BISNETTE

The possibility that the natural gas supply to Bay St. Louis would be cut off has been thwarted.

Norbert Redmond, director of public works, said he was notified on Saturday afternoon that the city's gas suppliers wanted to cut off Bay St. Louis in order to meet demand in more northern areas.

The city receives most of its gas supply from United Gas, but also operates in the spot market. Redmond explained that Bay St. Louis has a contract with United for a limited amount, but has the option of selling unused gas or buying additional gas from other suppliers.

Redmond stated that switching to other suppliers prevented a possible cut-off after some gas transportation and supply firms were unable to meet commitments Saturday afternoon. Part of the problem was peak usage; in addition, some suppliers out in the Gulf were frozen up as a result of the low temperatures that hit the area this week.

He said it was the first time in his five years as public works director that there had been a threat of a cut-off.

repairs were completed.

"One dangerous thing we see people doing is letting their hoses run out in the street. The water is freezing and the ice on the road is a hazard to motorists," Redmond said, recommending that the hoses be allowed to run into drainage ditches instead.

He reported no problems with water pressure, but there was some fluctuation in pressure from the city's gas supplier and valves to the city's lines were having to be regulated to compensate.

"We're okay right now, but our major problems will probably be completed. Saturday. Although the county is not involved in utility service, all county-owned buildings were being monitored in order to detect any leaks.

In addition, Cuevas said road crews may have to go to work if ice forms on roads and bridges.

Peter Platz, manager of engineering and operations for Coast Electric Power Association's Hancock District said the extra-cold temperatures resulted in an new all-time high in electrical demand.

In some areas, he added, demand went as much as 30 percent above the previous

Drug task force to be resurrected

BY D.C. HARVILL

Hancock County's three law enforcement agencies plan to take a shot at resurrecting an anti-drug program manned by an officer from each agency.

The Hancock County Sheriff's Office and the Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police Departments hope to reestablish the Metropolitan Drug Task Force in an effort to combat drug traffic in the county.

The three agencies had formed a task force earlier this year but it was dismantled shortly after its inception.

"We feel like it's going to work," Bay Mayor Edward (Eddie) Favre said when he announced the plan at a city council meeting Tuesday.

"The drug problem doesn't know any boundaries. It is bigger than any of us alone," Favre said.

"I think we have ironed out any problems we might have had in the past; we are all very receptive to the idea," Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said.

The task force, comprised of Narcotics Investigator Glen Strong of the Sheriff's Department, Officers Gus Aime with Bay Police and Jimmy Varnell of Waveland, is expected to become active at the beginning of the year.

The program will be overseen by the heads of the three agencies.

Formation of the task force comes after several meetings between the agency heads and

Mayors Favre and John Longo Jr. of Waveland.

Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn was not available for comment.

Wavland joins drug task force

BY DENA BISNETTE

The City of Waveland has voted to formalize an agreement of participation in the Hancock County Metropolitan Drug Task Force.

Mayor John Longo Jr., commenting that the task force is already operating "quite successfully," with Officer Jimmy Varnell serving as Waveland's representative.

He said the task force is not operating on grant funds at this time, but he hopes that in the next year or two some grant funding will be available.

One of the benefits of the task force is that seized drug money will be returned to the law enforcement agencies to be used to help combat the spread of drug abuse, Longo said.

Also participating in the task force are Bay St. Louis Police Department and Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

The resolution passed unanimously.

In other business Wednesday night, the board:

—Agreed to provide $200 for Basket for the Needy, a new charitable organization recently formed in Waveland;

—Discussed but took no action on a drainage problem at a US-90 site which is located on private property rather than the city's right-of-way; and —Took bids for purchase of two garbage trucks under advisement.

The board meets again at 6:30 p.m. Jan. 2.

high, which occurred early in 1985 when temperatures dropped to about six degrees.

Most of the major outages reported occurred in Pearl River County, but there were a few reports of lights blinking in Diamondhead as well.

Mississippi Power Company customers suffered some isolated outages, but most were in the Biloxi-Gulfport area rather than Hancock County, according to Buddy Eller of the utility's public relations office.

He said usage was particularly high for winter months, because most of Mississippi Power's highs, particularly the current record set last July, occur during the summer heat.

Most of the outages resulted from transformers which became overloaded, Eller added.

He said crews were able to complete enough repairs by Saturday afternoon to make the system stable in case there are more severe temperatures tonight.

The reports of various weather-related incidents included a barge aground in Cedar Point.

Also included was a report of a pelican found stuck in ice near Beach Boulevard and Dunbar Avenue that was rescued by two Bay St. Louis boys.

A Wildlife Rehabilitation and Nature Preservation Society (WRANPS) center volunteer in Pass Christian also received a report regarding swallows being run over in the Shoreline Park area because they were too cold to move out of the road fast enough to dodge cars.

mentations will add an additional $50,000 to $70,000 to the cost of constructing the landfill.

The supervisors questioned the validity of the recommendations, considering the regulations in question have yet to be passed into law.

"Right now I think I can put together enough information to get your permit, but it's going to cost a great deal of money later on," Compton said.

The board authorized Compton to proceed with his efforts to acquire the permit, since to do so would cost the county no additional money. The extra expense will only be realized if the landfill is constructed.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Ames Kergosien dropped off a copy of the Christmas Card from 1928 and we have reproduced a copy for you to view.

The list of names of commuters of the L&N printed at the bottom of the card brought back many memories of them to me.

There are even the names of two families for whom I worked odd jobs as a teenager in Waveland.

Of course, both gentlemen were retired at the time I worked for them, as it was in the late 1940's.

Many of the names are familiar to me and I am sure they will be to others who resided in the area in the first half of this century.

Many of you may not realize it, but the L&N's Commuter stopped at Bay St. Louis, Nicholson Avenue, Waveland Avenue, Clermont Harbor, Lakeshore and Ansley in Hancock County on the run from Mobile to New Orleans Monday through Friday.

The card was from some of the regular train commuters and an apparently annual Christmas Greeting.

Thursday was officially the first day of winter and we need not tell you there was a big weather change.

It has been a long time since we have had weather as cold as it was Friday and Saturday in Hancock County.

It has been since about 1962 that I have seen as much ice in the Bay as I witnessed on a drive along Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis and Waveland Saturday morning.

The Bay was iced over in some areas about a mile out. There was ice all the way out to the pilings in front of Conrad's Lane (now closed) in Waveland.

I did not stay out of my car very long as I was trying to take a few photos of the ice. The north winds were really cutting my face.

I am glad this type of weather only comes every few years in Hancock County.

Even those folks who have fled the North to reside in our warmer climate are complaining about the bitter cold.

I noticed the temperature registering 12 degrees on the Peoples Federal's sign on my way to work Saturday morning.

I sure hope it will be getting warmer for Christmas.

I am glad the Christmas party Friday held at the Hancock County Courthouse was inside.

Someone in the office commented Friday morning that they were sure glad the party was held inside now. The annual bash is co-sponsored by Edward Murtagh, tax assessor-collector; Ronald Peterson, sheriff; Mike Necaise, chancery clerk; and Pam Metzler, circuit clerk.

This cold weather will not leave the area fast enough for me.

I realize many of you will be traveling over the Christmas holiday.

I hope each of you will drive carefully, as the number of vehicles increases on holiday weekends, not to mention the cold weather problems.

We in South Mississippi are not accustomed to driving on ice-slick roads.

Please, have a safe holiday.

The annual political car wash was cancelled Saturday due to weather conditions.

Donations to the car wash go to the Hancock County Doll and Toys Fund and the event will be rescheduled, according to one of the participants.

I was ready to get my car washed Saturday, but I guess it was a bit cold for such a project.

I know one political leader told me he would not have been able to help this year as he was going to be out of town; rescheduling may still give him an opportunity of 'working'.

It always makes me feel good to see our politicians 'working,' even though some report they work on a regular basis.

If the event is rescheduled, we will let you know.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bay High students commended for assistance in PPEC fair

To the Editor,
I would like to comment on how well behaved the teenagers at Bay High were on the day Parents and Professionals of Exceptional Children sponsored their Very Special Arts Fair.

The art fair took place in the gym which kept the gym class from having their regular activities. The teenagers were very orderly and well mannered.

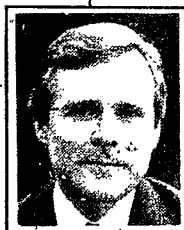

The art class, under the direction of Mrs. Evans, assisted the children with art projects. They were very cooperative and truly did a great job.

Teenagers from Princess Teen Board gave up their free period to do face painting for the children. The children truly enjoyed having the teenagers' attention.

I was very impressed when Mr. James said we needed help to clean up and students volunteered to carry supplies to our cars, fold tables and chairs, swept the gym and rolled up the gym mat that covered the floor.

Bay High students, I'm proud of you. You did a great job to make our activity a great success. And we thank you.

Christmas, a time of reflection and rebirth

This is one of the most special and joyous times of the year. It is a time of reflection and rebirth, a time of gatherings and giving thanks.

This holiday season represents a yearly island of peace, when family, friends and individuals join together in the common bond of their beliefs and the uncommon belief in the everyday goodness of humanity.

We have seen things this year that seemed impossible just months before. We have seen a wall of tyranny torn down by the tide of democracy. We have heard a people who had no say in their government become bell ringers of liberty and justice.

The changes began in May, as Chinese students quoted Thomas Jefferson in Tianamen Square. But democracy didn't stop there, it swept across the European continent, in Soviet Russia, in Poland, in East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

We have learned, by watching our neighbors that the right to vote is by far one of the most precious things embraced by a society wishing to be free.

Without that right to vote, we are abridged of our right to our opinions, and the right to be involved in decisions that affect us all.

Here at home, let us not forget our many blessings. We are safe and secure because of a strong national defense. Mississippi's people are hard working and dedicated to family and church. Our natural resources are abundant, and we value their bounty.

Most of all, we are driven by a desire to constantly improve and do better for our children like our parents and grandparents did for us. We can celebrate this year knowing that Mississippi is striving to secure a better future for our children through the power of education and knowledge.

Our nation was founded on the conviction that a country that does not offer the opportunity for all its citizens to reach their full potential through learning is a country that will not long remain free. As a state, we must renew our faith in the wonder of learning and preach the gospel of knowledge.

This holiday season, as we unite with our loved ones, let us not only sing carols of this time of year, but sing loudly the praises of our way of life, our freedom, our democracy, and our love for those with whom we share our beliefs.

On behalf of my wife Julie and myself, the best of the season to your family, and God bless our country.

Possible shakeup brewing in House Leadership Committee

House Speaker Tim Ford does not believe there is going to be a "bloodletting" in the House in January over rescinding the reform rules which brought down the House old guard leadership three years ago.

But at the same time, Ford says the new rules "are not perfect" and he senses "a frustration of many members about the way things are working" in the House.

And he may be "hard pressed," he says, to block a movement to change some of the House rules which could come about as a result of those frustrations.

Ford insists that he is committed "not to go back to the old rules" under which former House Speaker Buddie Newman had run the House with a virtual iron hand.

"I was elected to preserve the intent of the new rules," he told this column in an interview. "I still believe the intent of the rules is good. I enjoy an open, democratic House."

What seems about to become a key issue in a new internal struggle brewing in the Mississippi lower chamber is what Ford means by "intent."

There were rumblings last week that a movement is on foot to dilute the new rules which created the elective House rules and House Management Committees, both of which have been the object of Ford's displeasure.

The movement reportedly by some new-found Ford backers is targeted at circumventing the authority to Speaker Pro Tem Cecil Simmons as chairman of the Management Committee and unseating Rep. Eric Clark of Taylorsville as chairman of the Rules Committee.

Simmons, from Maben, and Clark had both been prime movers in the original 26 House members who started the rules reform drive in 1984. They were in the nucleus of the coalition which brought about the 1987 democratic new rules, and eventually triggered Ford's election as a reform speaker.

The rules change being talked by some lawmakers would cut the elected terms of members of both the Rules and Management Committees from four to two years, forcing a new election of members at the 1990 legislative session.

According to this scenario, six members of Management Committee would be targeted for unseating, and six members of Rules, including Eric Clark, would be voted off the committee.

Also in the works is a rules change to get rid of the two-term limitation on the speaker, which had been one of the key 1987 rules reforms. Ford has openly said he is now opposed to the two-term limit on grounds that there is no similar limitation on the terms of the lieutenant governor, the presiding officer in the Senate.

There had been speculation earlier that the reform rule giving seniority preference for appointment to the powerful Ways and Means and Appropriations Committees might also be targeted for elimination. But evidently because of the strong opposition from the Black Caucus, that idea was scrapped.

Clark said Ford seems to be "putting up a smoke screen to distance himself" from the rules changes which are in the wind.

"If he doesn't help us stop that movement, there's going to be a big fight," said Clark. "If Tim hadn't made a promise to adhere to the rules changes made in 1987 he would never have been elected speaker."

The Smith county lawmaker said he had rolled his Rules Committee and found that a majority of the committee does not favor any substantial change in the rules.

This would mean that the only other way of getting a rules change proposal to a vote of the House would be by a three-fifths vote of the entire House.

Neither Clark nor Simmons believe that rules change backers can get sufficient votes to put through any of the reported revisions.

"I think they would make a mistake to go up on the board (voting machine) on that," said Simmons.

Meantime sources close to Ford told this column that some of Ford's sources in the House have reported Simmons was "trying to get a candidate" to try to unseat Ford as speaker in the next session.

Asked about the report, Simmons declared: "this thing has gotten ridiculous. I am not promoting anybody for speaker."

But Simmons added that because of the widening gap between him and Ford, "There is no way I can support Tim Ford again."

T'was the night before Christmas and all through The Sea Coast Echo, not a creature was stirring, not even the rats who sometimes move into the storage room during cold weather.

The coffee pot and computers had been turned off with care, in hopes that on Christmas no one would need to be there.

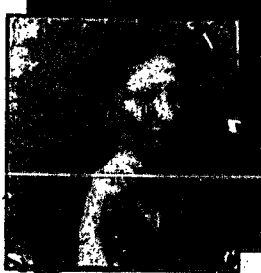

(The office doesn't close very often, you see. If someone were there, it would probably be me.)

The computers and presses were shut down and silent, and the staff had gone home for the holiday.

The only sound was a scanner, never turned off, and the traffic was slow. A policeman on duty wished another "Merry Christmas," then the machine settled into another lull.

(By the way, I'm not that practiced at poetry, so this thing isn't likely to rhyme, unless I get lucky, from time to time.)

T'was the night before Christmas at the Echo office

next door was operating with a skeleton crew, and those who weren't on patrol were doing what in winter is most sensible to do—coming into the office to get warm, that is.

So, no one was looking except a small stray cat, who was looking for a warm place to sleep, since he had found no human whose company he was willing to keep,

When on the Echo roof there arose such a clatter, he paused on his way to see what was the matter.

And when he saw what it was, he split the scene. After all, he was only a cat, so he didn't know what a visit from Santa Claus would mean.

Yes, on the rooftop of the office was Santa, but not the first reindeer. No, it's true what they say, old St. Nick uses other means of travel down here.

That's right, the fellow's sleigh wasn't a sleigh but a little boat, but on shore, and it was drawn by all manner of sea-birds, from gulls to herons to pelicans and more.

Santa was busy looking for a chimney, and the Echo doesn't have one. With a wink, he was down on the driveway, standing before the old garage door.

He opened the door by some means unseen, and he looked at the press and the door, and the forklift parked in between.

And old Santa got an idea. He threw his pack on the forklift and hauled it back to the boat. He wasn't going to need any of the things in it at this stop.

Instead, he turned on a computer, and all the little machines leading up to the laserprinter, and then turned on the printer.

He woke up a rat, who came out to look and was astounded to find that Santa knew how to type.

Santa printed out headlines, ones we'd like to use, too, but so far those headlines haven't come true.

Here's what he said and what we'd like to say, if only these things would happen one day.

"Peace breaks out," "Cure for cancer found," "AIDS fatalities ended with new drug," "No cases of child abuse reported in entire decade," "Everyone says no: drug abuse is over," "Crime rate decreases," "Economy improves, joblessness no longer a problem," and "House built for last homeless person."

Santa shut down the machines and closed up the office, heading back to his boat, but before he left, there was one more headline he wrote, and he called it out as he sped out of sight:

"Merry Christmas to all, and to all a good night."

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Merry Christmas! And, if you've still some shopping to do in our area supermarkets, you'd best hurry like the wind sweeping our area, and get it done, for the major stores, along with a number of others, will be closed on Christmas Day.

But there're all still open this Christmas Eve; and, if our frigid weather has slowed down your last-minute gift shopping, along with your enthusiasm for such, you'll find many delightful gift ideas, both food and non-food items, at our area markets. For instance, you'll find pecans, shelled and unshelled, suitable not only for your family table, but for gift giving. There's still time, for instance, to make this delicious old-time Creole confection:

PACANNE GRALLE
(grah-lay)
OR SUGARED PECANS
2 cups pecan halves
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
Dash of salt
1 tsp. vanilla

Bring the cup of sugar and the half cup of water, lightly salted, to a slow boil, and continue cooking until you can gather sugar threads to form a soft ball when a bit is dropped into a cup of water.

Add the two cups of pecan halves and the teaspoon of vanilla to the mixture, stirring rapidly until the pecans are coated with the sugar.

Pour or spoon out onto waxed paper, let cool, separating the pecan halves as they cool. You may double or triple this simple recipe as needed. They keep well, and make attractive gifts, gift-boxed or in other holiday-beribboned glass or other containers, and are delicious for serving to holiday callers, as well.

And, thinking ahead to New Year's weekend, or for this Christmas weekend, if you hurry before the store closes, National offers special prices on whole hickory smoked hams (17 to 20 lb. average), through Tuesday, while the supply lasts; and there's a limit of one, with $10 additional purchase.

National also offers shank and butt portions at good prices.

And, you might want to save some of that ham, or trimmings and pieces, to season your blackeye peas on New Year's Day, for the traditional good luck feast!

Or, you might prefer smoked sausage—just look over the selection at Winn-Dixie and Delchamps, and season up those peas!

And, don't forget the bargains in rice at Jitney Jungle, so cook it all up and enjoy.

And, of course, there's cabbage, too, traditional good luck food, for New Year's Day. Cabbage is going at good prices, especially those large ones at Winn-Dixie!

Merry Christmas!

Cookies make great holiday treats

The holidays are deliciously spiced with the aroma of cookies wafting from the oven. These marvelous morsels tell the story of the season as well as many of our traditions.

Christmas! Even the word evokes different memories and meanings for practically everyone. But baking has become one holiday tradition shared almost universally. In Europe, North America and South America and even parts of Africa and the Middle East—beautiful breads, cookies and cakes bespeak the spirit of the season and add a festive touch.

Perhaps the most widely offered tangible Christmas greeting is a colorfully decorated cookie. Most of the western world uses this morsel in many shapes, sizes and varieties.

How the custom began is still a mystery. But small sweet cakes date back to at least the time of the Roman Empire. During December, the Romans held an annual festival—Saturnalia—to honor Saturn, the god of agriculture. One of the most popular activities during the celebration was the giving of cookie-like sweet cakes.

Decorating evergreen trees with cookies probably originated in Germany and Northern Europe. Several hundred years ago the Germans used thin wafers signifying the Sacred Host to trim their trees. From this religious beginning emerged the cookie, which the Germans molded and decorated. Now these colorful treats make a glowing addition to their Christmas trees.

The cookies remain on the tree until the other decorations are removed. Then the children either eat the tidbits or they are left on the tree outside the home so the small creatures of the forest and the field may enjoy their own holiday feast.

Most of the emigrants to the United States coming from Europe brought our holiday traditions with them. Even though many customs have been "Americanized," cookies still convey Christmas greetings best.

Germans, Scandinavians, Austrians, Italians, the French and Spanish all provide their own special touch. All use a wide array of spices, nuts and fruits to add flavor to their holiday favorites.

Europeans prized spices as a valuable commodity during the Middle Ages. They were used to help preserve foods, sometimes used to cover up inferior or even spoiled goods. What a lucky day it was when that first innovative baker decided to add a little spice to his dough.

Today the knowledgeable use of spices is truly a beautiful art in baking and all cuisine.

The air of German kitchens carries the aroma of spicy fragrances. These creative cooks add a sprinkle of this and a pinch of that to many of their recipes. Pfeffernuesse ranks as one of the most popular German Christmas favorites. No holiday can be celebrated without these cookies so flavorfully spiced and unusual in taste and texture.

They will keep for a long time because the dough is not too rich and is almost dry. You may need to do a little dunking before sampling.

Sugar cookies contrast vividly to the spicy pfeffernuesse. Without spice they rely on the richness of bitter, sugar and vanilla for their flavor. These cookies are usually the ones used to decorate trees and light up children's faces with the pleasure of anticipation.

Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow.
Happy holidays and many thanks for thinking of us.

Commodities will be distributed Wednesday

The Hancock County Department of Human Services will distribute USDA commodities, flour, butter, cornmeal, honey and peanut butter on Wednesday, Dec. 27, at the American Legion Hall on Coleman Avenue in Waveland.

Distribution hours will be from 9:30 a.m. until all of the commodities are gone, but no later than 2 p.m.

Eligible recipients are those who receive food stamps or low income households who have applied for commodities at the Welfare Department and have been determined eligible.

Participants are reminded that they must bring their signed voucher with them in order to receive commodities. If a participant wishes to have someone else pick up their commodities they must sign the voucher on the front and on the back and the person picking up the commodities must sign it on the back and take it to the distribution site.

Participants are reminded they can only pick up commodities for two households at a time and they will have to carry the commodities they pick up.

Non-food stamp recipients may apply for commodities at the Department of Human Services (Welfare Department) through Wednesday, Dec. 27 (the day of distribution). Applications will not be taken at the distribution site.

The Food Distribution Program is available to all eligible recipients regardless of race, color, national origin, religion, age, sex or handicap.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Jesus, help me!

If you could select the last words which you were to utter in your life on earth, which words would you choose?

"I'd like to be able to say something like, 'I love you Jesus,'" said a friend.

With the slightest variations, no doubt all of us would choose a similar statement. So, no one would quarrel with Father Elmer Powell's parting request moments before death called him from this earth to stand before his Maker: "Jesus, help me!"

At this time of the year when we commemorate the birthday, or First Coming of Jesus, Elmer and many others have already lived through what is, for them, the Second Coming. What we can only speculate about and imagine, they have already accomplished.

"I don't have time to think, about dying, because I'm too busy praising the Lord," he had told Leonard Robinson just two weeks before those final, awesome moments. These words belied many a remark which he had made about himself from time to time. Following his penchant for keeping people in a stew, Elmer often made off-the-wall statements calculated to keep everyone off balance.

For instance, he called himself a Bohemian, and, to the unwary, this description fit his extraordinary zest for life. However, beneath the Bohemian facade resided a human being who discoursed almost constantly about eschatology; this is, "the last things" or the "eschaton" as he delighted to say in Greek.

Flashbacks take those who knew him back to those mischievous moments when he stirred up controversy between two or more conferees, then stood back and watched the heat of battle, all the while twirling his fist and shouting, "Camaraderie!"

Just as quickly, he could lapse into an easy but quite serious discussion on "the Kingdom."

"The older I grow," he would say, "the more I realize that the Kingdom of God is the basis for our whole life. There is nothing more real, nothing nearly so important as our relationships in the Reign of God."

Again, flashbacks take me back to 1943 when I first met him at St. Augustine Seminary in Bay St. Louis; he, a mature 22-year-old; I, a childish 13-year-old. Although he had done most of his college studies, he was a sophomore in high school then, voluntarily repeating because he was a convert of three years and because he had not studied Latin and Greek.

It was in junior college that his burning interest in world history had drawn him to the Renaissance Popes, then into the Catholic Church—no unlike the odyssey of John Henry Newman.

This proved to be one of Elmer's strongest points, enabling him to embrace and use to great advantage the richness of both the Protestant and the Catholic Faiths. Many of his meditations while delivering a sermon or while singing during the celebration of Mass were powerful old Baptist hymns which he savored.

I, for one, felt privileged to share those hymns and to learn not a few of them by singing together with him. A very pleasant bonus accrued from the fact that Elmer was an accomplished musician in his own right, very capable of reading and harmony.

"Take these letters back with you! My work at the seminary is done!" he told his superior, Rector Bill Kelley, SVD, days before his closing minutes. He thus closed an exciting life as a priest which spanned many states and three continents. Yes, it is Christmas! Yes, a John says, "The kingdom of God is at hand!"

Remember
Christ, our Savior, was born on Christmas day.

Hope, faith and belief in Him will illuminate our holidays, bringing joy and unity to all.

Merry Christmas
and thanks.

and Happy New Year

Coke ornaments inspire family's holiday trees

BY DENA BISNETTE

A set of four Coca-Cola ornaments she received as a gift from her son eight years ago started a holiday tradition for Mike Cuevas.

Cuevas loves decorating for Christmas and sets up as many as 12 Christmas trees in her own home each year. In addition, she branched out this year by helping one of the hostesses for the annual Krewe of Nereids Christmas tour adorn her home.

Mike Cuevas

At Ruth's Bakery, where she often goes for coffee, she was sitting around the day the owners brought out their tree and ornaments—when they got busy, Cuevas decorated it for them.

"That was my payment for the coffee and their hospitality," she commented.

Since she started working at Bay St. Louis City Hall several years ago, Cuevas has been helping with decorating when her schedule permits. This year, she did an indoor tree but in the past she has worked on the large tree in front of the building.

She never decorates for any other holiday and until she got the Coke ornaments, Cuevas did her Christmas tree like those in the average home—various types of ornaments according to what her family had, what was given to them and an occasional cute item she picked up in a store.

"Joe went to one of the shops on Main Street and paid something like a quarter down on those ornaments because he knows I love Coca-Cola memorabilia. He paid a quarter a week for what seemed like years," she said.

Those four ornaments led to a Coca-Cola Christmas tree years before theme trees became popular in stores.

"From that tree grew the Santa tree," she added, explaining that acquiring a figurine of the famous Coca-Cola Santa led to a collection of antique and antique reproduction Santas and Santa ornaments.

"I just take themes from the things I like," Cuevas said. Her daughter Katie's teddy bear collection wound up on another tree. Another tree featured the made me a "Mammy" cookie jar, painted in reds and greens so I could use it all year but it would still be appropriate for Christmas," she said.

"I looked at it and there was another tree."

The tree is done in a southern rural style, featuring bright reds and greens in the form of watermelon slices with jute instead of ribbon bows.

Her next project was inspired by her husband Sam, a career army man who has a lot of reproduction World War I and World War II recruiting posters. Cuevas wants to do that tree in red, white and blue.

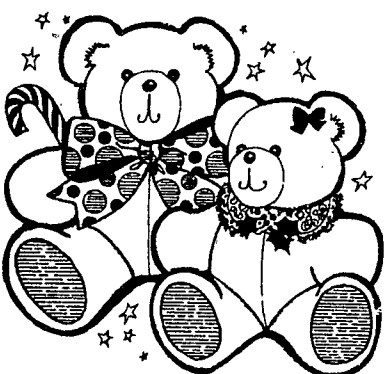

"It's going to have to be a big one, though. With the size of the posters, it's going to have to be at least an eight-foot tree," she said.

"Everything I've got starts out as one piece. It just kind of mushrooms."

porcelain dolls Cuevas makes as a hobby, but it was actually inspired by a box her mother had used to pack a present; the container features an illustration of porcelain dolls and German Steiff bears and appears under the doll tree every year.

When someone gave her some old postcards from about 1900, Cuevas was inspired to do a postcard tree. Some of the cards are originals and the rest are reproductions, but all of them feature the elaborate artwork not seen on postcards of today.

"Everything I've got starts out as one piece. It just kind of mushrooms. One time my dad

For the home of Toni and David Handshoe, which was on the Nereids tour, she combined things that belonged to the family with some of her ornaments. The theme of the tree was birds, highlighted by red paper fans. She used glass icicles which had been given to Toni Handshoe by her grandmother, creating a tree in red, gold and clear glass.

She used larger fans, red candles and a pair of David Handshoe's stuffed ducks to create an unusual mantelpiece decoration coordinated in both design and color with the tree.

A second tree in the home was decorated specifically for the children, Taylor and Amelia, using brighter colors and unbreakable ornaments.

"It's funny. I've never shown any talent for decorating except for this kind. I just do Christmas trees. I don't even decorate outside," Cuevas said.

She usually begins in November. On Thanksgiving Day, the season symbolically begins as the family starts using Christmas china for every meal.

Although she has done as many as a dozen trees, Cuevas averages about eight. She prefers trees of varying heights and usually includes at least one real tree.

Her husband and son drag lights and artificial trees out of

Toni Handshoe shows her children Amelia and Taylor some of Cuevas' work

Cola memorabilia scattered around the house.

Between Christmases, Cuevas enjoys shopping for ornaments. She would consider going into tree-decorating as a full-time business only if she could find the right partner.

You need somebody with you to supply that creativity when yours runs out," Cuevas explained. "I love Christmas. That's when I'm most creative."

"If you used no ornaments at all but you lighted the tree well, you would have a beautiful tree."

the attic, then she sends everybody out of the house until she's finished.

They usually have to find something else to do for up to several hours over periods of two weeks or more.

"It takes hours and hours to string lights properly, but if you used no ornaments at all but you lighted the tree well, you would have a beautiful tree," Cuevas said.

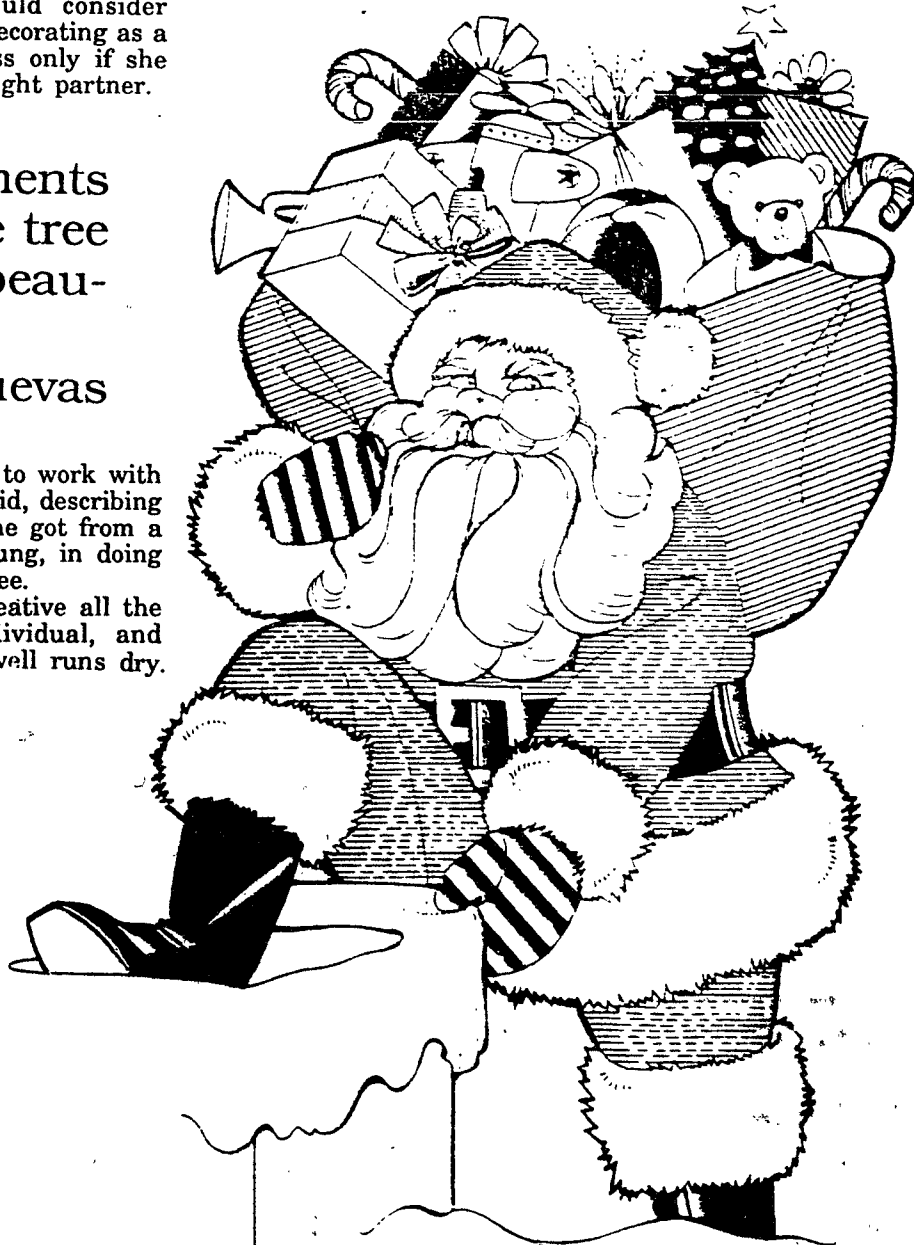

"And, if you don't have the money to put ornaments on your tree, if you wrap a pretty package, that takes care of it all," she added.

"Everybody celebrates Christmas around children, and we always had nice, safe trees at our house. It's nice now that the children are teenagers to know we don't have to hesitate about putting glass ornaments on our trees."

Christmas shows itself around the Cuevas home all year because many of the items used during the holiday season are never put away. Katie's bears are out all year and there is usually a sampling of Coca-

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Bay-Waveland
Garden Club

The Bay-Waveland Garden Club held its annual Christmas meeting and party on Dec. 14 including a miniature flower show and a tasting party. Everything was a complete success with all members bringing their special dishes and the recipes.

The meeting opened with the Pledge of Allegiance led by president Nanette Murphree. The prayer and blessing combined was given by Meg Hilliker with the members participating. Many thanks to the hostesses of the party, Sally Los Calso, Susie Seal, Ruth Russell and Alyce Newkirk.

Gardens of the Month were reported. Commercial award for the county went to Qualidome at Diamondhead Exit; the home award in Bay St. Louis was given to Mrs. Gene Seacrest, 22 Chantilly Terrace.

Library arrangements for December were placed in Waveland by Muriel Brokmeier and in Bay St. Louis by Aggie Tompkins.

The flower show was enjoyed by all as the highlight of the afternoon. The small and miniature arrangements were exceptional.

Nanette Murphree won the petite ribbon for the best design in the show. Blue ribbons were awarded in design to Alice Holmes, Lynn Nybo, Nanette Murphree, Alyce Newkirk and Billie Snider.

Blue Ribbons in horticulture went to Alice Holmes, Billie Snider, Lynn Nybo, Nanette Murphree, Alyce Newkirk, Rosemary Laigast and Cindy Lowe, with awards of merit going to Billie Snider, Alice Holmes and Cindy Lower.

The arboreal award was presented to Nanette Murphree, and the sweepstakes award went to Alice Holmes.

Special education exhibits were made by Alyce Newkirk and the club's sponsored group, Girl Scout Troop 27 and their leader Alice Holmes.

The Christmas Decorating Contest was judged Dec. 14 and 15 by Cindy Lowe, contest chairman, and a panel of judges. Awards were presented to:

Commercial: Yesterday's Treasures, 209½ Main Street, Bay St. Louis, and the Frame Shop, Hwy. 90, Waveland were top award winners. Honorable mention was given to This and That, 207 Main Street, Bay St. Louis; Halcyon House, 211 Main Street, Bay St. Louis; and Frames and Things, 212 Main Street, Bay St. Louis.

Residential Section, Bay St. Louis: first place, Yancy Pogue, 1532 North Beach; honorable mention was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Gary Yarborough, 118 Paradise Drive; James Austin Sr., 1009 Old Spanish Trail; and Harry Gilmore, 312 Ramoneda.

Residential Section, Waveland: first place, Charlotte Tartavouille, 1200 St. Joseph Street; second place, Wilma Herdon, 1045 Carroll Street.

Sweepstakes, Merit Award winner, Alice Holmes

Honorable mention was given to Judy Fletcher, 1506 Nicholson Avenue; Merle Brennan, 138 Lafitte Drive; and Betty Swatzki, 207 Jackson Street.

Congratulations to everyone. The Christmas spirit shines brightly in all the decorations and indeed enhances the neighborhoods.

Merry Christmas and happy holidays to all from the Bay-Waveland Garden Club.

Diamondhead
Garden Club

Diamondhead Garden Club members met on Dec. 20 at the Community Center for their Christmas meeting and luncheon. The covered dish affair was well attended, and members enjoyed the array of fare arranged by committee members Virginia Valigorsky, Elizabeth Steel, Marge Gemmell and Loraine Alvarez.

Seven guests were introduced by Betty Cutler; a change in by-laws was read by Jean Keen; and presentation of awards from the Christmas lighting contest were announced by Nancy Schuback.

The award for unlighted category went to the Felix Chetta residence on Diamondhead Drive East; first place in lighted category was awarded to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Godard on Ahekol Circle; second place, lighted category, went to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rosenhauer on Diamondhead Drive East. The Harold Swartzendruber home won the Garden of the Month Award.

President Gerri Garberg announced that Jane Conley has donated Christmas decorations, which were taken to the Reed Nursing Home by Margaret Williamson.

The Garden Club Christmas project to provide a large capacity clothes dryer for the Women's Crisis Center was successful. The dryer will be installed during December.

The delightful reading of The Cajun Night Before Christmas by Johnnie Boatright was enjoyed by all in attendance.

Good Health & Long Life are Invisible Christmas Gifts

When the Three Wise Men, led by the star, came from the Orient to worship at the Crib in Bethlehem, they brought with them gifts meant for a King. Along with gold and precious stones, they brought medicinal and aromatic herbs and spices (such as frankincense and myrrh) then numbered among the world's most treasured possessions.

It is clear from Biblical writings that the early Hebrews prized the "vegetable drugs" very highly and they had great respect for the physician and the physician's assistant, the apothecary (pharmacist).

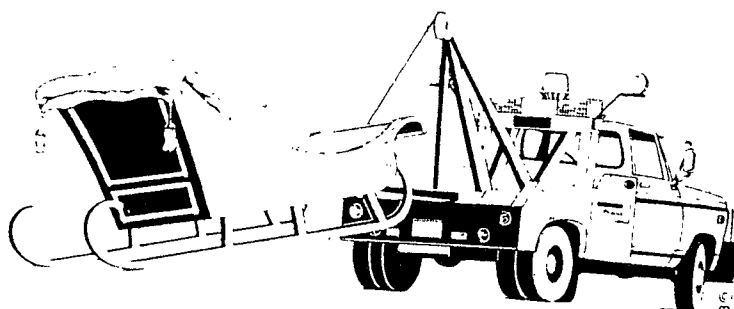

Beginning with the Book of Exodus, the Bible makes mention of these two "health team" members and of the methods they used to heal the sick. Bandages, applications of oil and of oil mixed with wine, salves, poultices, roots and leaves were the tools the Biblical physician used in order to practice his profession.

Fortunately, times have changed since then. Today's physician can count on hundreds of useful drugs to help him in his fight against disease. And, thanks to modern research, under your Christmas Star there's an invisible gift . . . health and long life.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

The Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post and Auxiliary 139 hosted the annual Christmas dinner for the ladies and gentlemen of the RSVP at the Legion home on Wednesday, Dec. 20. Upon their entrance, the guests were given a ticket for prizes to be awarded after dinner.

Commander Richard Brehm and president Margaret Prevou greeted the guests as they entered and gave them a hearty welcome. As they settled themselves, the commander asked the assembly to join in the Pledge of Allegiance. The chaplain gave the invocation and blessing.

The ladies and post members served the delicious dinner which was prepared by the "chief cooks and bottle-washers" of the Legion. While the guests were busy eating, Ray Noble entertained them with his music which was received enthusiastically. He played the familiar Christmas songs and carols, as well as the "oldies but goodies."

Commander Brehm and president Prevou introduced the volunteers who participated in the cooking and serving of the dinner. He then asked Mrs. Joann Lagasse to conduct the rest of the program.

Mrs. Lagasse, director of RSVP, welcomed the guests and introduced the prominent visitors from the offices of the city and state. She also thanked the merchants and people who generously donated the entrance prizes to be awarded to the lucky winners.

Mrs. Lagasse thanked the Legion post and auxiliary for the great dinner and hospitality shown to the assembly. Mrs. Eve McDonald, director of the senior citizens program, and her assistants were also on hand to see that everything ran smoothly.

The dessert was served, and everyone enjoyed the music, and a good time was had by all.

Life Underwriters

Howard R. Hines, CLU, ChFC, was featured speaker at the monthly meeting of the Gulf Coast Association of Life Underwriters on Friday, Dec. 15, in Gulfport.

A Mississippi native, Hines has been a successful financial service representative in northeast Mississippi since 1976. He is a member and past president of the Northeast Association of Life Underwriters, a life and qualifying member of the Million Dollar Round Table.

He spoke on what he called the "twelve philosophies" of business. He said that following these principles, he has been able to build not only a good business, but more importantly, good relationships with his clients.

The Gulf Coast Association of Life Underwriters meets on the third Friday of every month at the Best Western in Gulfport.

Pass Christian Senior Citizens

The Pass Christian Senior Citizens held their Christmas party on Monday, Dec. 18 at the Center on West Second Street. Before the dinner, Christmas carols were sung by all present. Mrs. Grace Necaise played the piano.

There were 31 active members present along with 10 guests. Special guests included Supervisor David LaRosa, Gena Dougharty, Mary Cavanaugh, Jane O'Brien, Mayor Theodore Lawyer, Barbara Talley, Dolores Peralta, Grace Necaise and Ken Saucier.

Sister Matina of Our Mother of Mercy Church was also a special guest. She said the blessing before the meal. A delicious meal, many desserts and ice tea were served and enjoyed by all in attendance.

A beautiful ceramic Christmas tree was won by Supervisor LaRosa.

The Center will be closed on Dec. 25, 26 and Jan. 1 and 2. Members present who celebrated December birthdays were Viola Carco and Mamie McDonald. The group sang Happy Birthday to them. Gifts were distributed.

Johnsons celebrate 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Ennis O. Johnson were honored by their children and their children's respective spouses with a golden wedding celebration on November 12.

The Johnsons were married at Our Lady of The Gulf Church in Bay St. Louis by the late Rev. Leo F. Fahey on November 12, 1939.

Mrs. Johnson is the former Margaret Carver of Bay St. Louis, and Mr. Johnson is a native of Laurel.

They had their vows renewed at St. Thomas Catholic Church in Long Beach with the Rev. James G. Ward officiating.

Musical selections were provided by Mrs. Debbie Vaughn. Best man was Ennis L. Johnson of New Orleans. The original bridesmaid was Mrs. Johnson's sister, Mrs. Melissa C. Norvell of New Orleans.

The Johnsons are parents of three children, Ennis L. Johnson, Charlotte Ann West and Margaret "Peggy" Davis. They have 10 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren, one step-grandson and one step-great-granddaughter.

A reception was held at Presentation Hall in Gulfport. Music was furnished by Garbnd Moran and the Night Travelers.

Mr. Johnson was manager of Bay Ice Company of Gulfport from June 1949 until his retirement in April 1979.

Mrs. Johnson was one of the original members of St. John Athletic Association and served as treasurer for 13 years. She was Girl Scout leader of Troop 17 at St. John School for many years.

Salmonella potential makes homemade eggnog a dangerous tradition

If homemade eggnog is on your traditional holiday list, consider switching to commercially prepared eggnog instead. Because of salmonella food poisoning outbreaks in recent years, it is no longer considered safe to consume raw eggs or foods containing raw eggs, such as homemade eggnog.

Commercial eggnogs are considered safe because they are made from commercially pasteurized eggs. Commercial pasteurization destroys salmonella bacteria.

Eggs remain a wholesome food. And the risk of contracting food poisoning from raw or undercooked eggs is small.

Nevertheless, you should cook eggs thoroughly until both the yolk and white are firm, not runny, in order to kill any bacteria that may be present in the food.

It is bacteria, not eggs, that cause salmonella food poisoning. Bacteria, plus mishandling of eggs through inadequate cooking, can cause illness. When you cook eggs thoroughly, you destroy any Salmonella bacteria present.

Mississippi Pecans

Mississippi pecans are being harvested now through January. Buy some for holiday baking, gift giving or storage for year-round use.

From a nutrition standpoint, pecans, like other nuts, are found in the meat, poultry, fish and alternates food group. This means they can be substituted for part of the daily requirement for this food group. But they are much higher in fat (of the unsaturated type) than lean meat, which accounts for their high calorie content (1/2 cup contains 360 calories).

Pecans are a good source of B vitamin, thiamin, magnesium, zinc, phosphorus and vitamin E. They are very low in sodium. Like all other non-animal foods, they contain no cholesterol.

The top varieties of pecans grown in Mississippi are Stuart and Desirable. Stuart, considered the old standby, produces a nice sized, tasty pecan.

Desirable, considered a "Cadillac" variety by some, has a thinner shell, lighter color and a higher yield upon shelling.

Other newer varieties, such as Owens, Cape Fear, Choctaw and Forkert, are also gaining in popularity.

You can purchase pecans in the shell, cracked for shelling or shelled. If you purchase pecans in the shell, ask the dealer to crack a few so that you can see the nutmeat. Avoid pecans that are shriveled or the shells poorly filled, both signs of poor quality. Do not buy moldy pecans. They may not be safe to eat.

Pecans purchased in the shell are your most economical choice. Followed by those that are cracked, followed by shelled pieces and shelled halves.

Expect to pay more for halves and buy them only if you plan to use halves in cooking. If you plan to chop the pecans anyway, opt for shelled pieces instead. Select unshelled pecans if you have the time to shell your own, as the price difference can be considerable.

It takes 2 1/2 to 2 3/4 pounds of pecans in the shell to make one pound of shelled pecans. One pound of shelled pecans yields 4 1/4 cups of either pieces or halves.

Pecans can be purchased now in quantity for year-round use and, if stored properly, will maintain high quality until time to purchase again from next year's harvest. It is extremely important to store pecans properly to maintain the best eating quality.

Because pecans are rich in oil, they become stale or rancid quickly if not stored properly. The principle causes of rancidity are air, moisture, warm temperatures and light. Good storage should eliminate these causes.

Pecans in the shell retain quality longer than shelled ones, although they take up more storage space. Halves become rancid less quickly than pieces, because there is less surface area exposed to air.

Keep only enough in your Christmas nut bowl at room temperature to last through the month, and store the rest in a cool, dark, dry place.

To store shelled pecans, put them in a container with a tight-fitting lid, and expel as much air from the container as possible before closing.

Shelled pecans become stale or rancid within three months at room temperature, but will maintain high quality for about a year in the refrigerator or for several years in the freezer at 0 degrees F or lower.

For long-term storage, it is also essential that storage containers are moisture- and vapor-proof. That is, they are designed for freezer use. Freezing shelled pecans in anything else will leave you disappointed in the quality when you open the container months from now.

Christmas legends become family tradition

The Christmas tree is probably the best-known of our Christmas plants, as it is most closely identified with the joy and goodwill of the season.

According to legend, the Christmas tree originated in Germany with Martin Luther (1484-1546). While walking through a starlit, snow-covered forest in his homeland, Luther was deeply moved by the scene.

In an attempt to duplicate it, he brought a small evergreen into his own home. Lighted candles were attached to its boughs to simulate the reflection of the stars he had seen. This custom was limited to the Rhine river district in Germany until 1700.

Another traditional Christmas plant—holly—also gained its renown in Germany. According to legend, the person who first brings holly into the home each year rules that household for the coming year.

We're all familiar with the kissing traditions associated with another Christmas favorite—mistletoe. This tradition apparently originated in the Scandinavian countries where it was part of a mythological tale.

It was said that the son of Venus was once severely injured by an arrow made of

SENIOR CITIZENS HAPPENINGS

By Eve McDonald

CHRISTMAS PARTY

We really had a wonderful Christmas party! More than 200 senior citizens enjoyed a delicious dinner provided by the American Legion Post 139 and served by the lovely ladies from the auxiliary. Thanks to all of you from all of us!

We also appreciate our local merchants who provided door prizes, Eckerd's Drugs, Peoples Federal Savings and Loan, Eastover Bank, Edmond Fahey Funeral Home, the Echo and the senior citizens themselves.

Hancock Bank paid for our one-man band, Riemann's paid for our drinks, and our super-supervisors and county officials paid for our delicious desserts. Don't we have generous folks in Hancock County?

HOLIDAYS

Again, I remind you that we will be closed Christmas and the day after and also New Year's Day. We will all be here Tuesday, Jan. 2, 1990! Another decade gone! Where does the time go?

NEW CLASS

We have a new volunteer teacher, Edward Andrejka. He will be teaching a class in pottery. Mr. Andrejka and his wife are both very talented people, I'm told by experts. We certainly will enjoy having another pottery class on Wednesday mornings. Someone is giving us a wheel so we will be working with wheel and clay. Call if you are interested in this class, 467-9292.

NEW STAFF

We are happy to welcome Joe Church to our staff. He will be working with ceramics. He will continue to do his volunteer work in the framing class, so don't you artists get worried! With Arlene Johnson moving into the program specialist spot—she needed someone knowledgeable in ceramics—and who is more knowledgeable?

Things will never be the same without Esther Gauthreaux. She will be sadly missed by all of us. We don't even like to think about it now. She kept things lively around here. She was one of a kind. Our sympathy to her family and friends.

PICTURE PRESENTATION

Our Congressman, Gene Taylor, arrived late for our Christmas party due to that awful "Panama Crisis." We were able to give him the picture Mr. Baldenhofer painted for him to put in his office to remind him of us. The picture is of a shrimp boat coming up Bayou Caddy. This will really make him homesick!

He was so sorry to miss seeing everyone as he has been to our parties every year and really looks forward to seeing so many of you at one time. He is interested in how you feel about everything that is going on in Washington, and will answer any question he can.

FOOT DOCTOR

Dr. Lynch will be at the Center Jan. 5. Call for an appointment if you haven't already done this, 467-9292.

Traditions

mistletoe. While mourning over her son, Venus' tears formed white berries on the plant. After her son recovered, however, Venus was so happy she bestowed a kiss on anyone passing under the mistletoe.

Poinsettia, the most popular potted plant for Christmas, also has a tale of its own. A poor Mexican girl brought the weed as a gift to the Christ child's manger and upon presenting it, the upper leaves of the weed changed to a bright red color and became the beautiful plant we know today.

Although our houses are decorated each year with a tree, holly, mistletoe and poinsettia, we may have failed to pass down the legends that explain their use. Plan a special night when your family can come together during this holiday season to hear Mother and Dad relate the old legends.

If possible, invite grandparents over for the party and encourage them to tell stories of their youth that involved cutting the tree or decorating the house. It is fun to hear how it was done "way back when" or even "once upon a time."

Next year the children will know the legends, and as each piece of greenery is brought into the house a child can be asked to relate the legend of its origins. This is one way your family can begin and maintain its very own family tradition.

Dollars ($1,800,000.00) be borrowed for the purpose of purchasing and installing equipment and furnishings in and purchasing, installing, renovating or constructing athletic facilities at buildings within the Hancock County School District, including, but not limited to Hancock High School; renovating school buildings within the District, including, but not limited to Hancock North Central High School, Hancock North Central Elementary School; paying a parking lot and making other improvements at Gulfview Elementary School; installing fencing and performing site work and mill work at schools within the District, including, but not limited to Hancock High School; making other capital improvements to school buildings and facilities in the District, purchasing school buses and other transportation equipment; refunding outstanding short-term notes of the District; and paying the costs of such borrowing (the "Project").

2. That no funds are available in the school funds of the District or from any other source with which to construct and perform the Project.

3. That it would be in the best interest and to the advantage of the District for the District to borrow the funds needed for these purposes by issuing negotiable notes of the District in the maximum principal amount of One Million Eight Hundred Thousand and No/100 Dollars ($1,800,000.00) in the manner and form provided by Section 37-59-101, et seq., of the Mississippi Code of 1972, as amended (the "Act").

4. That the purposes for which the funds are to be borrowed are hereby declared to be in the public interest, and that said Board is authorized and directed to execute and deliver the notes of the District as evidence of the same.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the Board of Education of the Hancock County School District, as follows:

SECTION 1. The Board does hereby find, determine and declare that the foregoing premises are true and correct.

SECTION 2. The Board of the Hancock County School District does hereby declare that it is necessary to borrow an amount not exceeding One Million Eight Hundred Thousand and No/100 Dollars ($1,800,000.00) for the purpose of paying the costs of the Project, previously described herein, all at a total approximate cost of $1,800,000.00.

SECTION 3. The Board does hereby further declare that no funds are available in the school funds of the District or from any other sources with which to make such repairs, purchases or improvements, and that it is necessary to declare the necessity and intention of borrowing money and issuing the notes of the District in the manner and form provided by the Act.

SECTION 4. The Board hereby declares its intention to borrow such money and to issue notes of the District as evidence of the same. The notes shall bear interest at a rate to be specified by further resolution of the Board, but shall not exceed a greater overall maximum interest rate to maturity than the rates now or hereafter authorized under the provisions of Section 19-9-19 of the Mississippi Code of 1972, as amended. The notes shall not be sold for less than par and accrued interest. The notes shall be dated January 1, 1990, or such later date as the Board may specify, and shall mature in approximately equal annual installments of principal and interest over a period not to exceed ten (10) years, the first of said installments being due and payable one year after the date of the notes.

SECTION 5. That unless a petition signed by twenty percent (20%) of the qualified electors of said District, requesting that an election be called on the question of incurring said indebtedness, is filed prior to 5:30 p.m. on January 2, 1990, at the office of the Hancock County School District Superintendent or at the meeting of the Board scheduled for 5:30 p.m. on January 2, 1990, in the Council Chambers of the City of Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, final approval of the borrowing of said money and authority for the issuance of said notes shall be given by the Board at its meeting held on such date and hour at the above location.

SECTION 6. That the Secretary of the Board be and he is hereby authorized and directed to cause this resolution to be published in The Sea Coast Echo, a newspaper published in Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi and of general circulation in the District and qualified under the provisions of Section 13-3-31 of the Mississippi Code of 1972, as amended. Said resolution shall be published once a week for two (2) consecutive weeks, with the first publication thereof to be made not less than fifteen (15) days prior to January 2, 1990, on which date the Board will take final action on the question of authorizing the borrowing of said money.

SECTION 7. That all orders, resolutions, or proceedings of the Board in conflict with the provisions of this resolution shall be and the same are hereby repealed. Upon a motion duly made by Board Member Barbara Dedaux to adopt the foregoing resolution, seconded by Board Member Carol Bustetter, and the question then being put to a vote, the results were as follows:

Board Member Frank Miller Voted: Yes Board Member Barbara Dedaux Voted: Yes Board Member Carol Bustetter Voted: Yes Board Member Kay Jones Voted: Yes Board Member Lennette Nacelle Voted: Yes Having received a majority of the affirmative votes of the Board, the Resolution passed on this the 11th day of December, 1989.
